What does the apprenticeship lead to?

On successful completion, you will earn a Level 4 NVQ Diploma in Construction Site Supervision.

How is the apprenticeship delivered?

The apprenticeship combines on-the-job learning with structured training to develop the skills, knowledge, and behaviours required for the role.

It includes regular workplace visits from an assessor, progress reviews with your Line Manager and weekly college workshops led by a lecturer.

What will I learn?

You will develop key knowledge, skills, and behaviours in the following areas:

- Health and Safety: Learn how to conduct risk assessments and understand the importance of safe behaviours in safety-critical environments.
- Sustainability: Gain an understanding of sustainability issues across economic, social, and environmental aspects of construction projects. Learn to assess, identify, and record the environmental impact of projects.
- Construction Technology: Understand various construction methods and materials, and assist in selecting and implementing the most suitable solutions for projects.
- Construction Management: Develop an understanding of management principles and the stages of the project management lifecycle.
- Personal Development: You will build essential personal skills such as effective communication and sound judgement.
